

Research paper work report

The report is the first stage in the organization of students' educational and research work, which is carried out through a public communication on a specific topic. The report, as a kind of independent work, is used in educational and extracurricular activities, promotes the formation of research skills, expands cognitive interests, and teaches to think critically. Reports can be oral or written. Usually the student's report is given during the current training activity so that he orally speaks to him at one of the seminar or practical classes. In addition, students prepare a presentation with a report as a form of protection of research, course or diploma work. In each case, the preparation of the contents of the report has its own peculiarities. But the general requirements for the preparation of the text of the report and speeches are the same.

Conclusion is the result of summing up the results of the work done. "Conclusion" should correspond to the abstract text, its goals and tasks, defined in the "Introduction". In conclusion, there must be answers to the problems posed in the introduction and a general conclusion drawn. It is necessary to list the main aspects of the question studied and express your own point of view on this issue. Thus, the conclusion shows whether the author achieved the goal defined in the introduction. It should be noted how the knowledge of the author of the essay (student) has changed on the topic, express his own opinion and attitude to the problem studied.

Applications can include graphics, tables, diagrams, illustrations, presentations. Applications in the amount of textual content of the abstract are not included, but are paginated with the main text in the general order. Each application is arranged in the order of the appearance of references to them in the text.
